New Course Offered In Fall 2021: AGR 302 International Agribusiness With Dr. Iuliia Tetteh

One in five jobs in the U.S. ag and food sector are tied to exports, and almost 25 cents of each $1 earned in agriculture in the U.S. come from export. In Illinois alone, over 40% of grain is sold for export. Given the growing importance of international trade for the U.S. food and agriculture industry, effective agribusiness managers need to have a better understanding of the impact of international markets on their operation and be able to identify and address risks and opportunities with entering foreign markets.

In this course, you will be introduced to fundamental concepts of international trade and markets, learn how to determine if the firm is ready to expand into international markets, will get familiarized with data sources that can help evaluate existing or potential export markets. You will have an opportunity to learn from case studies, real-world data sources and industry speakers. This course will also equip you with a unique skillset and competencies (e.g., understanding and navigating the operating environment (cultural, political, etc.) in a foreign market) which will strengthen your resume and make you a more competitive job candidate. If you have any questions, please contact Dr. Iuliia Tetteh at (iproto1@ilstu.edu).
